Hello Dolly

TOM DEKLE/Nelson County Schools

Olivia Hart, center, locks arms with fellow cast members during a Tuesday night rehearsal of the title number for "Hello Dolly," which opens today for a three-day run at Nelson County High School. Hart, a senior, performs the title role of the legendary Dolly Levi. The NCHS Performing Arts Department spring production includes 37 student cast members, 10 student/alumni technicians and an orchestra of 18 students, alumni and community members. Pictured are, from left, Matt Newton, Jesse Chowning, Jacob Hardin, Hart, Levi Stratton, Dustin Emerson and Hunter Bradley. Performances are 7 p.m. today and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. General admission is $8 for adults and $5 for seniors and students. For more information, call the school office at 349-7010.

Relay for Life to continue strides against cancer locally

Relay begins tonight and wraps up Saturday

JENNIFER CORBETT
jcorbett@kystandard.com

Community members will unite in their fight against cancer during the annual Relay for Life this weekend.

The event will begin 7 p.m. Friday at Bardstown High School, run throughout the night and end at 7 a.m.

Saturday.

Teams will be able to set up campsites at noon Friday. Entertainment will run throughout the evening until opening ceremonies begin at 7 p.m. Opening ceremonies will feature the Survivors' Walk, which honors survivors for their fight against cancer.

For Relay Chairperson Anita Westrup, the Survivors' Walk has an extra special sentiment since she'll be walking to commemorate her own battle with ovarian cancer.

She was at a loss of words when doctors told her she had cancer.

"When you hear those words, it can be a life or death sentence," she said.

Now, that she's been cancer-free for 37 years, Westrup has pledged to continually fight against the disease that took most of her family members.

"(I) work hard toward a cure because I don't want anyone to go through this," Westrup said.

Westrup said when she meets her fellow survivors, she feels an instant connection.

"It's like you've entered into another family," she said. "It shows you we're not a statistic."

Local wellness/respite center permit approved

ERIN L. MCCOY

A dream 10 years in the making is one step closer to reality for a family in the Nelsonville area.

Lizbeth Susan Campbell was moved to tears after the Nelson County Board of Adjustment approved a conditional use permit Thursday for a wellness and respite center to be operated by her daughter, Abby Peak, at 3467 and 3461 Patton Road.

"We have been working on this for 10 years," Campbell told the BOA. "This is not a job. This is a dream."

The Chrysalis Center would operate out of a residence on one property but would ultimately take advantage of two properties owned by Campbell, Peak and her husband, Richard. Abby Peak hopes to provide occupational therapy and operate a respite center on the properties. Respite care is a type of caretaking service for people with disabilities, particularly for those who live with their families, Peak explained.

"It can be overnight, it can be during the day, and you can offer it anywhere," she said.

In fact, much respite care is provided out of personal residences, she added.

Peak said she is not really founding an independent business — she will act as a sub-contractor for several organizations that provide services for people with developmental disabilities. Communicare is one such organization, although Peak is not employed with Communicare at this time.

Peak has been an occupational therapist since 2000.

"Pretty much since I started I've worked with this population," she said.

A Bardstown teenager was hit by a car Wednesday as she crossed North Third Street next to the Family Dollar Store.

Melissa Wild, 16, suffered a possible head injury and hurt her right arm and shoulder, but her injuries were not life-threatening, Bardstown Police Maj. Ray Lewis said.

She was discharged in stable condition from Flaget Memorial Hospital Wednesday.

A witness to the accident, William Taylor House, Bardstown, said Wild was walking across North Third Street around 4:08 p.m., crossing from the west side of the road, when a maroon Mazda SUV traveling west on Daugherty Avenue attempted to turn left onto North Third.

BARDSTOWN CITY COUNCIL

Fix set for John Rowan, Town Creek sewer main

Purchase of 18,000 converter boxes approved

jcorbett@kystandard.com

Bardstown City Council members approved a bid to replace and upgrade a sewer main, which would reduce weather overflow, for the South Salem Sewer Main Improvement Project during its meeting Tuesday night.

Filcon Construction, based out of Cox's Creek, was chosen for the project. It presented the lowest bid of $249,999.99.

According to City Civil Engineer Jessica Filiatreau, work will begin to replace the 8- and 12-inch sewer line with a 16-inch sewer line, which runs from East John Rowan to Towne Creek.

City Electrical Engineer Jeff Mills proposed the purchase of up to 18,000 Evolution converter boxes — 6,000 of which would come from Frankfort — that would coincide with the new sole source Evolution server the city purchased.

Mills added that the boxes would be used to convert analog signals to digital for Bardstown Cable customers. It would cost the city $23,000 to purchase the boxes — which would equal to two per household.

According to Mills, it's not mandatory for customers to buy the converter boxes. But as time goes on, and more and more television channels switch to high definition, it will be vital for customers to purchase or rent the box to retain a clearer picture.

"It's going to be a big endeavor," Mills said. "We're going to have to communicate with every household and say, 'This is what we're doing.'"

In order to rent the boxes, customers would be charged an additional 75 cents a month.

"This is going to help out the picture quality," Mayor Bill Sheckles said. "And we're going to need it to move forward."

"And this is the cheapest way to move forward," Mills added.

The motion passed.

Sheckles then motioned for an additional first reading of Ordinance B2012-06, which would allow indoor firing ranges.

The ordinance was originally read at the April 24 council meeting, however council members found several grammatical errors, numerical changes and minor wording alterations that needed to be corrected in the document.

City Attorney Tom Donan revisited the ordinance to make the required changes and presented the revised version to council members.

Ordinance B2012-06 would allow indoor firing ranges equipped for the practice of shooting, including archery.

The use of firearms would be permitted if the design and construction of the firing range completely confines ammunition rounds within the building in a controlled manner.

The ordinance further states that a registered architect or engineer in the state must also certify the design and construction of the firing range.

In the revised ordinance, special events or demonstrations would need to acquire a permit to shoot firearms, as long as the police department inspected the area for safety purposes.

The motion passed.

Letter carriers food drive set for Saturday

TAYLOR PETTIT
STANDARD INTERN

A trip to the mailbox is often a thoughtless errand.

But Saturday, flipping up the flag can be a thoughtful act of kindness.

The National Association of Letter Carriers is set to have its annual "Stamp Out Hunger" food drive in Bardstown in which citizens are asked to leave non-perishable food items by their mailbox.

"The food always stays right here," said Phil Medley, coordinator of the event. "It stays local."

About 10,000 pounds of food were collected in last year's drive but Medley said he always hopes for more.

"We always set a goal to try and beat last year," Medley said.

The Bardstown Post Office has participated for 19 of the national drive's 20 years. In addition, the Boston, New Haven, New Hope, Bloomfield, Fairfield, Chaplin, Nazareth and Cox's Creek offices also participate.

Items can be donated at the offices or left at a mailbox to be picked up by volunteers and postal workers.

Specific items such as canned meat, tuna, baby food, peanut butter and ramen noodles are needed. Donated items also must be in plastic or cardboard containers. Glass is not accepted.

Medley said it is important to weed out expired items from donations.

"Last year we had to throw out something like four boxes of food," Medley said. "It was all expired."

Medley said he believes if everyone in the area turned in a single item the food drive would see its greatest success yet.

"I couldn't even fathom a number but it would surpass anything we've collected so far," he said.

The St. Vincent de Paul Mission Store in Bardstown is one place that sees the need for drives like this.

"This community has pulled together ... in supporting the food pantry here," said Margaret Mattingly, director of the mission store.

She also said that this time of year brings up a unique need for a drive — feeding children.

"Children that would normally be getting reduced discounted meals in school," Mattingly said. "But summer is coming. Sometimes the food stamps just don't go far enough."

Three vehicles collide on Helsinki Hill

Home to be set ablaze for fire training

Burn set for Saturday

STAFF REPORT

Bardstown Interim Fire Chief Marlin Howard made an unusual prediction at a City Council meeting Tuesday: a house will catch fire on North Third Street in Bardstown Saturday.

Howard also knows the reason why: Bardstown Fire Department firefighters will be setting the fire themselves.

The vacant home next to Sonic, owned by Dick Heaton, will be set ablaze for a live fire training exercise.

The home at 915 N. Third St. has been used for firefighter training before. According to a fire department press release, an

Relay For Life collecting pull tabs

The Relay For Life of Nelson County Event will be May 11-12 at Bardstown

High School Athletic Field. Everyone is welcome to bring any pull tabs from aluminum cans to the booth to be weighed for prizes for most tabs collected in various categories. Recognition will be for most tabs collected by high school and grade school. Church groups and individuals in age groups 0-5, 6-11, and 12 and up. The aluminum cans can be dropped off at Campsite No. 25 and the Cedar Creek Cancer Crushers team will crush your cans. If there are questions, call Anita Westrup at 349-0059.

Canned Goods for Relay For Life

The Relay For Life of Nelson County will be using canned goods to hold the luminaria bags in place around the track. Any donations of canned goods should be brought to the Relay For Life at Garnis Martin Field at Bardstown High School May 11. The cans will hold the luminaria and will be collected Saturday morning and divided among the food pantries of Nelson County. For more information, call Anita Westrup at 349-0059 or Judy Werner at 348-4006.

Relay For Life Cake Walk

The Relay For Life Event held at Bardstown High School track May 11-12 will host a cake walk. If anyone would like to support Relay For Life, they can donate a cake to the Cake Walk in the infield of the track. There will be many more activities and fun things to do and to see when you come out to see what Relay For Life teams have been doing all year and to celebrate the survivors. For more information, call Anita Westrup 349-0059 or Jackie Donohue 827-3146.

Win Alan Jackson at Relay For Life

You could be the lucky person to take Alan Jackson home with you from the Relay For Life Event set for May 11 at Bardstown High School. Come and see what the teams have been decorating their campsites with, what fun is in store, and all the cancer survivors you will encounter. Find Alan Jackson at the event and find out how you could be the one taking him home with you. For information about Relay For Life, call Anita Westrup at 349-0059.

Relay For Life Luminaria now for sale

You can purchase your Luminaria bags from any team and write your own message on the bag to remember, honor or support your loved ones touched by cancer. The Luminaria are white bags that bear the name of anyone you know that is fighting cancer now, anyone who is a survivor of cancer, or anyone who has passed away from cancer. You can purchase a bag and decorate it yourself, if you like, or just have the name written on the bag. During the Luminaria Ceremony at Relay For Life May 11 at Bardstown High School, candles will be placed in the bags and they will be placed around the track. The names of all represented on the bags will be read and honored and will remain lit on the track all night long as the walkers remember and recognize the importance of each name on each bag. For more information, call Judy Werner at 348-4006 or Anita Westrup 349-0059.

The House by the Side of the Road
by Sam Walter Foss
"Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
Where the race of men go by -
They are good, they are bad, they are weak,
They are strong, wise, foolish - so am I.
There are pioneer souls that blaze their path
Where highways never ran;
But let me live by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

Acts of friendship extended in the past affirmed Ron's aspiration to be "a friend to man"- he realized that aspiration in Bardstown.

We are blessed to be connected with this community through friends.
Thank you so very much.

Words can be powerful, spiritual

Enjoying the beautiful weather downtown a while back, I had seen a pleasant familiar face sitting on a bench at our beautiful court square with his guitar in his hands — Bardstown's very own Matthew Fogle — playing some music. Matthew, a gifted and unique musician, was simply there spreading joy by his presence. He had shared with me that he was on a sabbatical from performing to write new material, and interesting enough, the bench at the court square is where he becomes inspired to create! Pretty cool I thought. I thank Matthew for sharing his story with us. Music is powerful and the lyrics are comprised of words that release something.

Proverbs 18:21 states, "Death and life are in the power of the tongue: and they that love it shall eat the fruit thereof." Scientists now are catching up with the Bible and today we are living in a time when knowledge is available. Words and music not only affect us individually, but the body of Christ as a whole. Of course the release of words involves our hearing. As a fetus, the ear is the first sensory organ that is developed and causes electrical impulses that charge the brain and cause the brain to grow. There is a muscle that is developed in the ear that never rests until we pass over, thus we constantly receive positive or negative, blessing or cursing.

TERESA KAYE RAKES

» LION OF JUDAH

All of us have been careless in releasing words that bring harm into people's lives that are not our judgment call and really none of our business to be truthful. On retrospect we can become excited in the revelation of the endowment of God within that gives us the opportunity to create beauty in those around us; for truly we are His essences of light, and life in which is called the anointing. What an opportunity!

It has been proven that our very words affect our health — whether physical or mental state. The peripheral nervous system serves as a "telephone wire" and is attached to all of our body except the spleen, so words that are released into the atmosphere also affect our bones and skin. God told Ezekiel to speak to the dry bones so that they may live. This puts a whole new light on this passage of scripture. What we speak is not seen but yet an activating force in the spirit realm. Just like the wind, we can't see the wind but we can see the effects of the wind. So, our words need to be guarded with care and under the influence of the Holy Spirit.

Children are 90 percent water, whereas adults are 70 percent water. Dr. Masaru Emoto, a Japanese physicist, did a study on how words affect water. He developed a way to take pictures during the 20 to 30 second period of time when water will perform crystals depending on the purity of the water. Dr. Emoto brought in school children and had them speak to the water three times, "You are beautiful." The water turned into beautiful crystals. He tried another experiment whereby he wrote negative words on a piece of paper and rubber banded them on a jar toward the outside. The crystals were deformed, and yet the same water, same source. The point is we are 70 percent water and words do affect us. That is why it is so important to surround ourselves with loving supportive people.

Our DNA also carries memory from previous generations that also needs to be reshaped or reformed from previous generations. This is what the Bible calls generational curses, which really stem from words being released in a spirit of contention, strife, rebellion, and lack of love. The good news is because we belong to Christ, and His endowment within we have the power in His name to bring us back into the state that He has called us to be which is happiness and wholeness.

In the body of Christ, unity is so very important if we truly want to attract the world for Jesus. I personally believe that the power of Christ is not in the church today in the way that it should because of wrong words which consist from gossip, back-biting, etc. Because we are a body connected spiritually through Christ the Head, we suffer lack. As the scripture goes when one rejoices, all rejoice. The Lord shows us the natural to help us understand the spiritual. Whether it be in the body of Christ or personally you cannot touch someone through words without it not changing your state as well.

The hearing of man goes right into the heart of the spirit of man. What we hear and receive, we will eventually be. Let's strive to build one another with our words, thus we will see a change in our families, churches, towns, state, country and even the world. This is the heart of God and the heart of true and lasting revival.

Nelson Christian mother-daughter luncheon

Cyndi Moreno, Director of Development for On a Hill Productions, will be guest speaker for the Mother - Daughter Luncheon sponsored by Nelson Christian Church. 11:30 a.m. May 12 at My Old Kentucky Home Country Club. All women in the community are invited to attend. She was formerly the Director of Development with Women 4 Women, a non-profit organization dedicated to improving the health and economic well-being of women and girls in Louisville. Prior to that she spent nearly five years as the Executive Director of Advancement for Assumption High School where she helped raise more than $3 million for the Mind, Body and Spirit Capital Campaign.

She is a native of Nelson County and a graduate of Spalding University.

Ladies who are interested in this event may call the church office at 348-3495.

Ladies' Brunch

Bardstown Baptist Church will be hosting its seventh annual Ladies' Brunch, 11 a.m. May 12. Back this year will be the fashion show, food, fellowship, music and door prizes.

Everyone is invited. Luncheon is sponsored by the youth ministry. Tickets are $10 each or a table of 8 for $75 and are now available at the church office. Call 348-3866 for more details.

Women's Conference

First Baptist Church Women's Ministry will have its 3rd annual conference Woman to Woman "Building Unity" 8 a.m.-1:30 p.m. June 2. Continental breakfast will be served. Speakers include Wanda Washington, Pleasant Union Baptist Church, Campbellsville, Diedra Bailey and Linda Taylor, both of Cable Baptist Church, Louisville. Lunch will be served following the speakers.

Threads of Hope collection

From Easter to Mother's Day, First Presbyterian Church is collecting items for Threads of Hope, a non-profit Christian organization. These items will be taken to a sewing co-operative in Nicaragua. Any sewing items — from sewing machines, steam irons, any material except wool or flannel, craft supplies, scissors, etc., are needed. For more information, call the Church at 348-6076 or 349-1281.

Paddle Pickup reduces trash found in our local waters

Bardstown and Nelson County are fortunate to have the Bardstown Boaters involved in working to keep the Beech Fork River cleaned up.

Rivers are good windows into the soul of a community. Left neglected, trash builds up on the bottoms and along the banks, contributing to pollution of the water and making an otherwise scenic vista ugly and unsightly. Saturday, the club will hit the water for its eighth annual “Paddle Pickup,” cleaning up another section of the river under the close scrutiny of the club working with other volunteers.

The entire section of river that passes through and by Nelson County cannot be combed of debris and junk every year but by biting off a section a year the Beech Fork can be kept in reasonable shape. Those who use the river as a landfill or trash heap seem to be declining in numbers. Getting county-wide mandatory trash pickup established here was a major step forward in eliminating all kinds of illegal dumping and the annual “bulky item pickup” has been another big factor in cutting back, but not eliminating, trash in the river.

Tires, even though they’re picked up as part of the annual county bulky item project, are still a plague on the river. Tires are also one of the harder items to deal with when canoes are being used to transport trash to a pickup point.

Something new has been added to the Paddle Pickup this year — a camp-out on the lawn at Spalding Hall Friday. It is a good way to build solidarity among participants and also a good way to make sure everyone is up and ready to go for the job at hand Saturday. The theme “Occupy the Beech Fork” is a clever way to play off a topical theme to promote change.

Bardstown Boaters has, as an organization, helped to raise the community’s level of concern about why it is important to take good care of our natural resources so future generations can enjoy them, too. The organization’s dream of a mini-whitewater park east of the U.S. 31E bridge remains alive but unfulfilled. However, keeping the river clean for the future development of such a park is important and with Bardstown’s need for future raw water still a priority, it is possible that an enhanced “rubble dam” could lead to something much bigger.

In the meantime, we owe a great deal of gratitude to the Bardstown Boaters for protecting a very important part of the Bardstown-Nelson County quality of life.

OUR VIEWS

A moment of national (gay) pride

I have not always been proud of Barack Obama. I wasn’t proud when he chose to keep Guantánamo Bay open, or when he flip-flopped on holding trials in civilian courts for suspected 9/11 terrorists. I’m not proud of the United States’ expanding campaign of drone attacks, conducted with only partial information and with allegedly marginal regard for the possibility of civilian casualties. But Obama’s recent change of heart on one issue — the right of same-sex couples to marry — has made me prouder of our president than I have ever been. I can think of no contemporary issue that more fully engages the Constitutional principles of freedom and the right to pursue happiness upon which our country was founded.

I will say first of all that I think Obama’s change of heart occurred in public, not in private. I’m not alone in suspecting he supported gay marriage all along, but our political environment today has been so polarizing that any politician who simply desires to tell the truth about her views must weigh the decision carefully. The result is politicians seem to support and even vote for propositions that in their heart, they believe to be wrong. Look at Mitt Romney: his views haven’t evolved so much as they have been prodded into submission by the perceived demands of voters and the polar right. The elephant in the room is he probably is not as conservative as he says he is.

» emccoy@kystandard.com

This contrasts with Joe Biden, whom I have always admired for being unusually candid for a politician. He was the first in this administration to come out in support of gay marriage, ultimately provoking Obama to do the same. Some commentators have called his occasional slips of the tongue “gaffes.” But we as voters should be exceedingly grateful for them even if we don’t agree: after all, how often is it that our representatives actually say what they think?

There are few issues in which I believe there is no gray area. Argue your point to me and I’ll probably doubt my own standpoint by the end of the argument. But gay marriage is not one of those issues.

I won’t argue whether being gay is a choice. The question is immaterial. Any choice a person makes that does not affect me is none of my business. Period. (Live and let live is a libertarian ideal in everything, it seems, but social issues like this one.)

And if it’s not a choice, all the more reason to treat homosexuality with the same respect for human equality and dignity as we treat race or disability or socioeconomic status. We have laws to protect people from discrimination based on race or disability. It’s unfortunate that we need to make laws to require people to be decent to one another, but this provides some indication of how terribly wrong an entire society can be in its views. There was a time where racism was institutional, unquestionable. There was a time you could fire a person with impunity for being disabled.

Soon, I hope, we will be able to say that there was a time when a person’s sexual orientation inspired hatred in complete strangers, cost them their jobs, alienated them from the churches where they worshipped, meant they couldn’t marry their soul mates, denied them rights equal to those of heterosexuals under the law. We will be able to say there was a time, because although gay marriage hasn’t been legalized yet, here’s the truth: that time is already past.

Finding my footing in Bardstown

Idyllic Bardstown is something that I picture in a romantic novel, not a new chapter of life I’ve strolled into.

The charming downtown, lush greenery and rich history are beautiful, poetic and honestly a little unsettlingly.

As the new summer intern for The Kentucky Standard, Bardstown is new to me. And as with all new places and new faces comes a creeping sense of anxiety.

But wrapped up somewhere in the lengthy definition of “intern” is the word anxiety itself. It’s practically in the job description.

As the editor of Eastern Kentucky University’s independent student newspaper for the past year, work experience has been piled — sometimes thrown — right at me.

In my time there, at what

INTERN
» news@kystandard.com

many would consider a sleepy weekly, I covered everything from impeachments in student governments to hazing incidents to the opening of a new pet store that focused on parrots.

But despite some experience “the real world” can still seem ominous.

At the grocery store to stock up for my new place I let thoughts of my first day run through my head.

After years of planning and daydreaming about working at a newspaper it was actually happening. And would it be like I imagined?

Imagined disaster scenarios soon followed.

Walking in to shake the editor’s hand and tripping face-first made it to the forefront.

Thankfully, this did not happen despite a deadly combination of high heels and wrinkled carpet.

To be honest it doesn’t feel completely real just yet. I still feel like I might trip at any moment.

Looking around a new town, despite nerves and anxiety, it is a calming feeling to know you’ve worked hard enough to at least plant a wobbly foot down somewhere.

When I started my first day of college three years ago jitters were abound as well.

As I made the trek to Richmond I was more nervous about the change of scenery.

I was born and raised in New Jersey. The idea of moving to a place where biscuits and gravy are a staple of a good breakfast and college basketball reigns supreme gave me a horrible case of the butterflies.

But those fears soon subsided. After three years in the commonwealth I can now proudly make my own batch of biscuits and gravy and have learned to get excited about most of the games.

Those fears came and then were conquered with experience not just sitting around thinking them away.

My experience in Bardstown will hopefully be just the same.

Nelson County road projects

Our newly enacted road plan includes the following projects for Nelson County. All of these are scheduled with “real” money, which means that each is considered a high priority and is funded.

First, I’m very pleased that we will continue to rebuild Louisville Road. This time we’ll finish the northern section beginning at Whitesides Drive close to Whitney Stables and ending at the Salt River Bridge just south of Mt. Washington.

The funds are for the right-of-way, utility relocation, and construction phases of the relocation of 31E/150, with a total amount of funds available at $36.7 million. You’ll remember that I announced that the middle section would take about five years from start to finish, and that’s what happened. I’d say the northern section will take the same amount of time.

Meanwhile, U.S. 150 from just east of the BG Parkway gets a great deal of traffic, maybe more than Louisville Road. Our longer term plan is to rebuild this road, but for now we have secured funds to lay a widening strip on each side of the road all the way to just past KY 152, replacing the dirt edges. This will also include the installation of rumble strips, and the project is set at just under $750,000.

DAVID FLOYD
STATE REP.
50th District

The 245 bypass between U.S. 62 and U.S. 150 needs widening to accommodate heavy traffic, and so we secured funds for design, right-of-way, utilities, and construction in the amount $16.7 million.

Resurfacing of the BG Parkway continues, and the new project will finish the stretch between Springfield Road and the other side of the Bloomfield exit. It’s a little more than 5 miles, and will cost $6.6 million.

We have several bridges that need to be replaced, and we’ve set aside more than $8 million for these. The bridges include:

- Beech Fork Bridge near Fredericktown on the Nelson/Washington line;
- East Fork Simpson Creek Bridge on U.S. 62;
- Hinkle Creek Bridge on U.S. 62;
- Chaplin River Bridge on KY 458; and
- Froman Creek Bridge on Mobley Mill Road (CR 1327).

None of these road/bridge projects can be considered “pork.” The total amount secured is $68.9 million, so we did real well in this road plan, better than many expected.

There are other projects listed in the road plan for Nelson County, but I’ve only mentioned those for which funding is assured. The Bull Run project on Nat Rogers Road is funded separately from the state road plan, so I didn’t include that either.

The best part of this job is hearing from you, so please continue to call me if you need help, or just want to talk. You can also leave a message for me in Frankfort by calling 1-800-372-7181.

THE OCCUPY MOVEMENT FINALLY DEVELOPS A COHESIVE MESSAGE:

>> READERS' VIEWS

Letter gave readers wrong idea

To the editor:
Democratic Chairwoman Margie Bradford recently made reference to my latest article and may have mistakenly given readers a few false representations. I am not sure the political intent to reference my name in conjunction with the state legislature and political gridlock, but the fact of the matter is that my article simply highlighted conservatives I have met around the county in a positive manner, many of them belonging to competing political parties.

In fact, I have written only of the State Assembly once, simply highlighting bills before the legislature and encouraging people to contact Frankfort to support or oppose legislation as they saw fit as individuals.

I would point out that if her letter gives readers any impression that I am a vassal of state government, or any level of government for that matter, it certainly isn't the case.

While it is true that I am an involved conservative activist, I have never run for nor have I held any elected or appointed political office, partisan or nonpartisan. I have absolutely no power of taxation or regulatory authority over any other citizen. I continue to enjoy the same career in the private sector that I have worked as an employee for more than 12 years.

Finally, I would like to congratulate Mrs. Bradford on her re-election as Chair of the Nelson County Democratic Party. I welcome healthy debate where the two parties disagree, and hope we can work together to serve the community in a positive manner by engaging in a dialogue the people of Nelson County deserve rather than engaging in “slash and burn, pass the blame game” politics in a highly contested election year.

Tigers qualify two for state tourney

JILL PICKETT/Landmark News Service

Bardstown senior Clayton Brooks made it to state last year as a doubles player. This time around, he's qualified for the boys' singles draw.

Two Bardstown High School tennis players are making a return trip to next week's state tournament, but the circumstances under which they qualified are much different from last season.

Senior Clayton Brooks advanced to the 5th Region semifinals earlier in the week, earning an automatic state berth into the boys' singles draw. Brooks went last season as one-half of a doubles team with John Stone.

For Brooks, however, it feels just like the first time. "It doesn't feel like it should be happening, just because I've always played doubles," he said. "I figured I'd just go through the regular season and maybe win district."

Brooks said his coaches told him that he would surprise some people, including himself, with how well he would do as a solo act.

"I have (been surprised), just to make it to state as a singles player," he said. "Even to win district, I wasn't expecting to do that."

Bardstown's boys returned to the top of the heap in Tuesday's Class 1A Region 3 team competitions, while Bardstown's girls needed a strong performance in the final event of the day to edge runner-up Fort Knox by just five points.

"The girls stepped up when they needed to," Bardstown coach Jeremy Dale said. "They knew they had to bring their 'A' game."

Bardstown's second-place finish in the 4x400-meter relay gave the Tigers enough points to fend off Fort Knox, 147-142. Bethlehem's girls placed sixth overall. In all, the Tiger girls won region titles in four events and had 10 automatic qualifiers for next week's Class 1A State Championships at the University of Louisville.

In boys' competition, Bardstown outpaced runner-up Fort Knox 142-114 to win comfortably. Bethlehem's boys placed eighth.

Bardstown junior Victoria Yocum was a dominating presence at the meet, sweeping the girls' sprint events and coming up with a big run in the 4x400 to help the Tigers place

Ben Beam cleared 12-00 to win the Region 3 pole vault championship, and teammate Clay Donaldson was runner-up. Both seniors, Beam and Donaldson also have previously medaled at state. The Tiger boys placed first in just three events, but built up enough points anyway to win the team competition against Fort Knox and Holy Cross, which won five and seven events, respectively. Bardstown will be in action at Thursday's Class 1A State Track and Field Championships at the University of Louisville's Cardinal Park.

ARCHERY

3D target shoots at Culvertown have been popular

PETER W. ZUBATY

pzubaty@kystandard.com

The semi-weekly 3D archery shoots that debuted on a course behind the Culvertown ballpark this spring have been a first-year success, organizers say, with nearly 60 participants each session.

"The sport's just grown so big," said Gene Culver, who used to set up 3D shooting targets on the property where he runs the Bent Arrow

Archery business, but the crowds got to be too big, prompting Culver to petition the Nelson County Fiscal Court for permission to expand the course on a larger location, a wooded area behind the ballpark.

At the midway point of the season — the next 3D shoot is set for 9 a.m. Saturday — Culver said 58 people a week has been the average, and there is space to accommodate many more people. Culver said shooters can register up until 1 p.m.

The next shoot would be May 26 and the shoots occur every other Saturday through July 21.

Shooters go on an obstacle-course type of trail through the woods, looking for life-sized targets resembling game hunters would target in real life. Full-sized elk and buffalo are featured, as are multiple types of sheep found in the wild.

"It's probably one of the best ranges in terms of variety of targets," said Culver, who is a decorated hunter of big game.

In all, 30 different targets line the range paths, giving shooters numerous options to simulate the hunting experience.

"It's pretty realistic," Culver said.

Cost is $10 for adults, $8 for youth and $5 for shooters 12 and younger. Scores are compiled throughout the season, and the best score will win a new bow at the end of the season.

quarterfinals, 6-4, 7-5, to earn the state berth, then fell 6-1, 6-4 to eventual region champ Alex Spalding of Marion County later that day in the semifinals.

The Kentucky State Tennis Championships start Thursday in Lexington, with boys' competition at the University of Kentucky's Boone Tennis Center and with girls' competition at Shillito Park.

For junior Anna Jones, she's heading back for a second straight trip to the state girls' doubles tournament. This time around, however, she has a different dance partner.

"It's really great," Jones said. "I didn't expect to get back with a new partner."

But she and fellow junior Riley Smith — who joined up with Jones after her partner from last season, Gabi Hamilton, left to study at Western Kentucky University's prestigious Gatton Academy — complemented each other well. So much so, they drew a No. 6 seed in the region tournament, then beat Meade County's Mallory Brown and Kayla Keith in the quarterfinals, 6-3, 6-2, to qualify for state. They fell 6-1, 6-3, in the semifinals to eventual region champs Mary-Chapin Snow and Mackenzie Snow of Elizabethtown.

"Once we started playing together, we synched very well," Jones said. "We hit like we've been playing for years together."

Smith joked that it was the "commonality" of their last names that helps them work so well together, but also that Jones' experience was a good guide.

"I was nervous a lot of times and she would just calm me down and keep me focused on the games," Smith said. "I've got a good partner."

Smith said she would continue to lean on Jones for those nervous moments next week at state, where Jones has had an opportunity to get the "wow" factor out of the way through last year's trip, and knows what to expect this time around.

"The girls were so much better than we've ever played," Jones recalled of last year's state tournament. "It's just like a new experience to see all the talent you don't see at the regional level, and it's so much bigger than you would ever think."

Smith said she's excited about her first chance at state, and felt like she had a chance at getting there with Jones.

"We've always dreamed of going to state — that's the goal," she said.

"And once you go, you want to go again," Jones interjected.

Brooks said it will be different not having a partner to lean on at state this time around, and has altered his game somewhat in his approach.

"I've really depended on my serve a lot this season to make quick points," he said.

His groundstrokes have gotten better as a result as well, but he doesn't relish a lot of long points the way you might see many of the club players engage in them.

"I haven't really had much structured coaching — I just kind of picked it up and went with it — so I feel that's kind of an advantage I have over these guys who hit the same motion over and over," Brooks said of his more free-flowing style of play. "I'm just trying to get it back and get it to land in and see what they do back at me."

Will having been to state before be an advantage? Brooks said nerves still concern him.

"Since it's singles now — singles at state is totally intimidating," he said. "The guys are on a whole new level that I've never played. I don't know what's going to happen. Hopefully I can get a good draw and see what happens. I'll do my best no matter what."

second in that event.

"She thrives in that competitive environment," Dale said.

Samantha Bowling grabbed Bardstown's other first, winning the pole vault.

In all, runner-up Fort Knox and third-place Holy Cross had more event wins (six) than Bardstown (four), but with six other runner-up finishes and solid scoring all over the meet, the Tigers were able to claim the crown.

"It was just an all-around strong day," Dale said, noting that several Tiger athletes finished with marks that should qualify them for at-large state entries.

Other big efforts included the one from Caprishia Green, who broke the school record with her 98-00 discus toss, placing second in the region, and also placed third in the shot put. In addition to Green's big day, Tiger girls had 11 runner-up or third-place finishes.

Sarah Beth Hayden posted Bethlehem's best result, finishing third in the long jump.

The Bardstown boys had eight automatic qualifiers, led by senior Justin Hubbard, who cleared 6-04 to win the high jump, was second in the triple jump and placed third in the long jump. Ben Beam won the pole vault, clearing 12-00, and the Tigers' 4x800 relay squad also won.

Just as in the girls' competition, the Tiger boys had fewer first-place finishes than runner-up Fort Knox (five) and third-place Holy Cross (seven), but did enough damage anyway, picking up points all over the board.

"We talked to them as a team before the meet and said, 'my challenge to you is to finish one spot higher than what you're supposed to,'" Dale said. "A lot of those kids did."

Sophomore Dallan Goldring, for example, was runner-up in the 110 hurdles and fourth in the 300 hurdles, despite this being his first season competing in the event. He also placed third in the triple jump.

"The boys just stepped up all around," Dale said.

Flaget Memorial Hospital officials honored the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth for their work in the community during a celebration Thursday afternoon in the hospital's serenity garden. Flaget President Sue Downs presented the Sisters with a commemorative plaque and a $5,000 donation towards the Sisters' scholarship program. Downs added that Flaget Memorial Hospital plans to pay tribute to the Sisters by naming an upcoming addition to its campus the "Sisters of Charity of Nazareth Building." "It's a way to honor them," Downs said, noting that the Sisters helped launch Flaget Memorial Hospital in the 1950s. "They do so much for the community," she added. "They're the ones that made our culture and gave us values."

Representatives from the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth applaud after Flaget Memorial Hospital President Sue Downs informs them that Flaget plans to name a new building on the campus in honor of the Sisters.

Coming into the celebration, Sisters of Charity of Nazareth President Sister Mary Elizabeth Miller said she didn't expect such a generous donation or Flaget Memorial Hospital naming one of its buildings in their honor. "It's almost overwhelming," she said. "We're very much honored and we're very much proud of Flaget and the work they do."

Garage Fire

The Bardstown-Nelson County Fire Department responded to 216 Stinson Dr. around 9 p.m. Sunday after a pile of garbage caught fire in the residence's driveway. A person moving into the residence reportedly told firefighters that the garbage was left over from the previous resident and appeared to have been moved, Sgt. Paul Vance said. The pile — comprised mostly of wire, wood and paper — may have been set ablaze intentionally.

Student arrested for teacher abuse

ERIN L. MCCOY
emccoy@kystandard.com

A Nelson County High School student was charged with abuse of a teacher and harassment after a physical encounter at school Tuesday morning.

Justin Derek Downs, 19, New Haven, was booked at the Nelson County Jail at 10:48 a.m.

"There was an incident between a couple of students and the teacher stepped in to deal with it," Nelson County Schools Communication Director Tom Dekle said. "The incident basically involved inappropriate physical contact."

Dekle declined to specify whether that contact entailed a fight between the two students. However, he said neither the students nor the teacher was injured.

The district will not file any charges against Downs, Dekle said. The Nelson County Sheriff's Office filed the citation, not the district, he explained. School Resource Officer Joedy Gilliland took Downs to jail.

KRS 161.190 prohibits anyone from directing speech or conduct toward a school administrator or teacher that could interfere with normal school activities or the discipline of the school.

Downs was released from jail on his own recognizance at 9:06 p.m. Tuesday.

Though a survivor, Westrup still fights for her loved ones who didn’t make it. The night also serves as a reminder that her work toward finding a cure affects countless people in the community.

“This is why I do it,” Westrup said. “Everyone knows someone affected by cancer. It touches everyone.”

After the opening ceremonies, survivorship awards will begin at 7:30 p.m. A dance will run 7:30-8 p.m. A silent auction begins at 8:30 p.m. The luminaria candles will be lit at 9:30 p.m., with the luminaria ceremony beginning at 10 p.m.

According to Westrup, the luminaria ceremony will be a little different, as the luminarias will be held down with donated canned goods, instead of sand. Once the ceremony ends, the canned goods will be donated to local food banks.

Nelson County Judge Executive Dean Watts promoted the benefits of Relay for Life after he signed a proclamation declaring Friday to be “Nelson County Relay for Life Day.”

Watts’ proclamation states, “Relay for Life is the American Cancer Society’s signature fundraising event, bringing communities together in hope, celebration and memory.” The mission of the American Cancer Society is to eliminate cancer as a health problem by saving lives and diminishing suffering through research, education, advocacy and service.

A new addition to the Nelson County Relay for Life is a meditation booth.

Westrup added that the booth would serve as an outlet for those who know someone fighting cancer or just lost the battle, and who needs someone with whom to talk. There will a pastor present if anyone needs to speak with him.

Kelly Shain, 22, Bardstown, had a green light when she turned, Lewis confirmed.

Wild was thrown into the air, colliding with the hood of the car, House said.

“It knocked her straight out of her shoes,” he said. Her flip-flops were thrown off her feet, and according to House, she landed on her stomach. He and another man went into the street to help her.

“She tried to move on her own, but we just told her to stay laying until the ambulance got here,” House said.

Nelson County EMS transported Wild to Flaget Memorial Hospital.

“She was alert, pretty alert at the hospital,” Lewis said.

Shain will not face any charges in connection with the incident. Neither Shain nor her passenger were injured.

“She didn’t see her and she made the turn,” Lewis said. “I told her accidents happen. She was really upset.”

Pettit also has experience working in opinions and features.

During her time as editor in chief of The Eastern Progress, the paper won third place for overall general excellence in the college division from the Kentucky Press Association.

She won first place in breaking news, second place for analytical/in-depth story and third place in investigative coverage at the 2012 Kentucky Press Association banquet.

Pettit also received an honorable mention for a feature on student efforts to aid Japan after its 2011 tsunami from the Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association.

She is majoring in journalism with a dual minor in political science and gender studies and is set to graduate in May 2013.

Before moving to Kentucky for college she lived in New Jersey and graduated from high school in 2009.

She can be contacted at 348-9003 ext. 114 or e-mailed at news@kystandard.com.

bers were concerned that if she provided services for people claiming worker’s compensation, it could alter the nature of the business. But Peak said that is not the population she hopes to serve — instead, she hopes to work with people legally classified as disabled and dealing with cognitive disabilities or problems.

James Nalley, Shepherdsville, who owns property adjacent to those in question, said he wasn’t opposed to the permit, but raised concerns about employees on the property without supervision.

Peak agreed to a stipulation that only she or another owner of the property, namely Campbell, would be responsible for caretaking on the premises. A maximum of six people, or three per caretaker, would be permitted on the property at any one time.

Though the hours of operation would depend on a client’s needs, Peak said it would likely only operate on a part-time basis.

Peak has installed a wheelchair ramp and widened doors in preparation for opening the Chrysalis Center — in fact, the family purchased the properties for this very purpose.

The properties offer something that many respite centers don’t have: 17.5 acres and an outdoor area that can enhance care.

There’s walking trails. We have a pond,” Peak explained. “We want to offer fun, cookouts and campouts, those things that normally people aren’t able to do.”

“It’s about quality of life,” Campbell said.

Peak and Campbell were inspired to help those with special needs by Peak’s brother, Tyler Campbell, who is disabled.

“Ever since I had Tyler,” Campbell said, “I wanted better things for people with special needs.”

The name itself symbolizes development and evolution: a chrysalis is the shell of a cocoon from which a caterpillar eventually emerges as a butterfly.

Why Bardstown? Reasons why this should be your next home

When I was a practicing REALTOR® and went out to show homes to prospective buyers, I came across quite a few out-of-towners and I always asked them “Why Bardstown?” Of course, there were always the folks whose job had them moving here. I’ve met the people who want to move out of the city, but still stay close enough to work in the city. They told me that they liked the slower pace of life and housing prices are better.

I met a couple who were just driving across the country in the early days of their retirement. They pulled into town, took a couple of unintentional trips around the courthouse and ended up with a rare parking spot directly across from the corner drug store/ soda fountain, Hurst Drugs. (It wasn’t until later that they discovered that the parking spot was illegal.) After a grilled cheese sandwich and a root beer float, they strolled casually down the main street, looking in all the unique gift shops, the bookstore, the antique dealers, the florist, the barbers, the art galleries, finally ending at the ice cream shop. What they didn’t realize was that five hours had passed since their lunch. They told me that it was then that they knew if they could spend five hours walking about two blocks, then this must be a place that they could call home.

Bardstown is an hour or less commute to Louisville, Lexington, Fort Knox, Elizabethtown, Frankfort or Southern Indiana. The area has economic, educational or esthetic advantages over many places.

Our schools are outstanding, and I’m not going on statistics and scores, I’m going on my four children who were educated here and our experience has been very positive. With two public school systems, one parochial school system and several faith-based schools, the Nelson County/Bardstown area offers choices that will more than adequately meet most families’ needs.

Flaget Memorial Hospital has been recognized as one of Thomson’s Top 100 Hospitals. It’s a new facility of which our community is extremely proud, including a new oncology center with some of the best facilities and equipment in the region. When the hospital moved from its former location near the intersection of U.S. 31E and U.S. 62W, the vacancy presented an opportunity to relocate from the old outdated library structure into a new section of the former hospital. We now have a state-of-the-art fully equipped library with soft comfortable chairs, several meeting and educational rooms. It is truly a treasure for our town.

If you’re looking for fun there are movie theatres, skating rink, Stephen Foster Outdoor Drama, outdoor theater productions, Summer Concert Series, Friday Night Live Music Series, Music Man Country Music Productions, Kentucky Bourbon Festival, Bardstown Arts and Crafts Fair, Wine Tasting Festival, 4th of July Festivities, Bardstown Bowling Lanes, Bardstown Community Theatre, My Old Kentucky

Home State Park, Maywood Golf Course, Woodlawn Springs Golf Course, Cedar-Fil Golf Course, My Old KY Home State Park Golf Course, Dean Watts Park (soccer, baseball and football fields), Bardstown Parks and Recreation Center. I know there are so many that I didn’t mention them all.

Food? There are dozens of restaurants of all types and I like to try them all! We have American Cuisine, Mexican, Japanese, Chinese, Home-Cooking, Fine Dining, Sports Bars/Pubs, Pizza, Hamburgers, Fish, Sandwich shops, Cafes, Diners, Soda shop..... You’ll never go hungry here!

Why Bardstown? Because it is a town full of pride, with a strong vision about what we want the future to look like here, that values its citizens whether they are sixth generation, or “brought-ins”, that lives fully the “American Dream.” A big part of that dream is for its citizens to own a home to live and raise a family in a town that is the perfect combination of down home charm and a welcoming collection of good people. Just as important is a business community including REALTORS®, lenders, attorneys, inspectors and insurance agencies who are knowledgeable, sophisticated and more than able to serve the needs of anyone wanting to make this place their home.

Why NOW? Because the cost of a mortgage has never been cheaper. Because the availability of quality, affordable homes in the area is good. Because the cost of living in our town is still a bargain compared to many cities and towns. Because opportunities don’t last forever.

New Haven Library

Photos by ERIN L. MCCOY/The Kentucky Standard

Nelson County Public Libraries celebrated the grand opening of the New Haven Branch at the intersection of North First Street and East Center Street May 6. "This building is paid for and everything with it through investments," Nelson County Public Libraries Director Sharon Shanks said. The opening kicked off with a ribbon-cutting ceremony at noon.

BELOW — (Clockwise from top left) Nelson County Public Library Board members Jeff Dickerson, left, and Adam Martinez enjoy the bright windows in New Haven's newly built library branch. Seven-year-old Kendyl Corbin draws a door prize winner at the grand opening celebration; also pictured are Technology Coordinator Emily Burkot and Assistant Director Michael Greenwell. Cole Hagan, 6, reads as friend Cory Chesser, 6, looks on. Stephanie Norman, New Haven, and her 5-year-old son, Caleb Norman, read in the children's section. Children were already enjoying the computers at the New Haven Library Branch during its grand opening celebration 12-2 p.m. May 6.
